

McLaine Merrick is a trial attorney who spent his first five years in the courtroom defending insurance companies all over the state of Georgia. With that experience, he now represents the injured people taking on those same giant companies and helps clients navigate the complexities of the legal process. McLaine earned his Bachelor's degree from Harding University and returned to his native

Atlanta to obtain his law degree from Georgia State University. He now lives in Peachtree Corners with his wife and two children.

McLaine has successfully tried cases as a lead trial attorney in multiple Georgia counties including Cobb, Henry, and Hall. In his free time, he stays just as active. McLaine plays soccer, hockey, and tennis regularly. He is also an avid fan of Atlanta United, music, and theatre.
