Social media research is crucial in litigation. In initial stages, it identifies witnesses, gathers evidence, and outlines event timelines. During litigation, it tracks opposing parties for new evidence, including posts or media that can sway the case. For jury selection, it helps vet candidates for biases and informs on their stance on pertinent issues. The most effective juror selection is often de-selection.

Colorado Springs Police Department

Homicide Detective, Gang Taskforce, DV Subject Matter Expert, VIP Security (Tom Brady/Patriots, LA Rams, PGA Tour) etc. Cross trained with the plain clothes intelligence unit (2018/2019.)

While employed as a sworn officer, I completed numerous complex investigations, drafted search warrants (property, social media accounts, cell phone data,) conducted undercover surveillance, assisted SWAT with tactical operations, and received multiple department commendations.

Jordan Switzer

Welcome to my professional domain, where legal acumen meets digital savvy. As a Legal Reports Coordinator at Social Slooth Inc., I blend the precision of legal strategies with the innovative edge of digital investigation, particularly in jury trials. My foundation is in legal analysis and advanced digital investigative techniques, but my passion extends to writing articles that shed light on the legal world in a way that's both informative and entertaining.

What I Do:

I delve into the digital dimensions of legal cases, enhancing strategies from jury selection to trial and post-trial analysis. My forte is unveiling digital behaviors and patterns that sway legal outcomes. But beyond the cases and courtroom dramas, I enjoy breaking down complex legal concepts into engaging narratives, sharing my insights through articles that aim to educate and amuse.
