

J. Tripp Mitchell Bio

J. Tripp Mitchell has worked within the arenas of security and investigation for over thirty (30) years. His background includes a robust service in both the public and private sector. He has been a member of the Georgia Board of Private Detective and Security Agencies for over 20 years and works to maintain professionalism within the industry.

As a founding member of the Southeastern Chapter of the Association of Threat Assessment Professionals (ATAP), he has developed a better understanding of behavioral threat assessment and management (BTAM) and works to reduce risk and manage threats across diverse environments from stalking cases to executive protection.

Along with his master's degree in public administration, Tripp is an alumnus of the Georgia Law Enforcement Command College, an adjunct criminal justice instructor, a Senior POST instructor, as well as a Certified Protection Professional (ASIS). He works with threat assessment teams, advises and trains with outside organizations on how to better navigate the threat and risk landscape.
